

AN 18-YEAR SENTENCE GIVEN TWO BOYS BY JUDGE GRIMM TODAY

BERGER AND MEYER GO TO WAUPUN AT HARD LABOR FOR LONG PERIOD FOR MURDER OF TILLY BERGSTERMAN.

SENTENCE EXPECTED

Prisoners for First Time Appeared to Realize Enormity of Their Crime and Stood With Heads Bowed As Sentence Was Passed.

Edward Meyer, aged 19 and Harry Berger, aged 17, convicted of rape and of third degree murder when they caused the death of Tilly Bergsterman September 30, last were each sentenced to 18 years at hard labor at the state's prison at Waupun by Judge George Grimm at the circuit court this afternoon. The first day only of their imprisonment shall be in solitary confinement.

The two boys stood before the bar of justice with heads bowed down and were more than adequately aware of the enormity of their crime. They arrived in the court room accompanied by Turnkey Philo Kemp shortly before two o'clock and sat quietly until court was called. They glanced neither to the right nor left and paid no heed to the large audience which filled the court room.

A hush fell over the court room when Judge Grimm rapped for order and ordered Sheriff Ransom to open court. The two boys stood up before the court for their sentence. Then each stood convicted of the crime of third degree murder and rape, said Judge Grimm. "Have you, Edward Meyer, any reason to give why sentence should not be passed?" Meyer's head hung lower and shook it negatively. "Have you, Harry Berger?" He had none.

Speaks for Clients. Attorney Thomas S. Nolan, counsel for the lads, asked if he had anything to say in behalf of his clients, asked the court to be lenient taking cognizance of the age of the convicted parties. He mentioned that it was a first offense, that the boys were of previous good character, and urged the court to sentence them to the state reformatory. After he had spoken Judge Grimm gave the sentence, preceding it with a short explanation and review of the boys' case.

"It is the saddest duty which a court has to perform," he said, "to convict persons guilty of crime. And it is especially hard in your case owing to your age. You are just entering on young manhood and it is very sad that your characters should be marred by this depravity. Your counsel has said that you have been boys of good conduct up to this time, but one of you on the witness stand admitted that you had been guilty of immoral conduct in the past.

"Your case grieves me especially on account of your parents, who, I am informed are honorable and upright citizens. You have blasted the best part of your lives when you have yielded to the impulses of depraved youth.

Should Have Confessed. "You had the impulse to confession after you had committed your crime, and that is what you should have done instead of going on the witness stand before your God and testifying to your innocence. The testimony against you was overwhelming; affecting the jurors and all who heard it. Your tale on the stand was utterly improbable and you knew that you were adding perjury to your crime in an effort to escape justice. You should first have confessed and have been willing to have taken your punishment, then relying on the mercy of the court. You have not shown the right spirit.

"In passing sentence on you, I can not be less harsh than the citizens of this state have by their law prescribed. When you are under the supervision of the board of control and by proper conduct you can shorten your term very greatly.

Dwells on Crime. "You stand convicted of one of the greatest crimes known to the law, next to willful murder. When we consider the brutal, atrocious, inhuman manner in which that crime was committed, I feel it my duty to be severe. You have caused the death of a young girl of 18 years in the third degree, and the murder resulting from rape, but rape was the greater crime. Third degree murder characterizes and shows the nature of the depravity of the crime of rape.

"Your crime well-deserves the maximum sentence, and had you been persons more experienced in crime I should feel compelled to sentence you to the full thirty years. But since you are young, since no one can tell what influences have contributed to your depravity, and since for youth there is always hope for reform, I shall modify your sentence still meeting the ends of justice. I cannot send you to the state reformatory. It is not a proper case and should I send you there you would be turned over to the state's prison at Waupun." He then passed sentence for eighteen years on each of the lads and ordered them removed from the court.

Considering the deductions of time for good behavior, the two boys will practically serve eleven years and three months each. One month being deducted the first year, two the second and so on, one each year until six is reached and from that time on six months each year.

Ends Unique Case. The words of Judge Grimm passed

ing sentence on the two youths, convicted of the murder of the Bergsterman girl on the night of Sept. 30, ends the court record of a crime unique in the annals of Rock county criminal history. Never before in Janesville have lads so young been convicted and sentenced for an offense so heinous. That it is one of the saddest cases is equally true and the scene in the court room this afternoon will not be soon forgotten by any who were present.

The sad details of the Bergsterman crime are all too fresh in the minds of the Janesville people. The murder occurred on the night of Sept. 30; the facts have been brought out in all their darkness at the preliminary examination in the municipal court and at the trial just closed before Judge Grimm.

The entire case has been such as to arouse Janesville citizens as they have never been roused before and a moral reform wave has resulted the effects of which have been most sweeping. Less than a week after the tragedy a meeting of indignant citizens was held.

Citizens Demand Action. It was no church affair. It was a meeting of fifty determined business, professional and workingmen, who gathered in the office of a prominent contractor, discussed matters and then demanded a hearing before the mayor and commissioners. By the time they reached this stage their numbers had increased five fold and over two hundred joined the march to the city hall where plain facts were told the city officials without any garnishments or the memorable evening of October 11. Not only were plain facts of conditions told but in such a way that there was no excuse for the city officials to further delay and they became immediate action.

But meanwhile the citizens were not content with promises and named Judge J. W. Sale of the Rock county probate court, as head of a committee of fifteen citizens to see that the council had sufficient backing to go ahead. The committee was named and holds weekly meetings. It discusses matters pro and con and makes suggestions to the mayor and council as to what should be done and is done.

Reform Measures Adopted. Early in the regime of the commission form of government the council passed a screen ordinance, a law which affected every saloon in the city, compelled them to close their doors at eleven each night, to open their interior to view of the street and to be closed on Sunday. Now at the orders of Chief Appleby out went the slot machines, the dice games, sources of revenues for the saloons and cigar stands, patronized by youths. Next came the revoking of saloon licenses of W. A. Knipp and Richard Finley. Following this was passed an ordinance prohibiting women from all saloons, also minors and making it an offense for youths to be about their age in seeking liquor.

Disorderly women were ordered out of the city, their resorts closed and careful police guard kept of all suspicious women who plied their trade on the streets. Janesville did not have such a great number of these, but since the restricted districts of Chicago and Milwaukee were closed they had become more common. Last but not least came the announcement that next July but forty liquor licenses will be granted instead of fifty-three now in vogue.

Clubs and Churches Aid Clean-Up. Meanwhile the various men's clubs of the churches have taken up the questions and discussed them freely. Ministers in church gatherings talked of reform, mothers' meetings have taken in for the weekly topic and other women called meetings of women to plan for reforms in the home. Of course this has brought to light much vague scandal. Gossip tongues have been at work on the reputation of many prominent persons and stories, some of them a quarter of a century old, have been revived. It has gone out through the state that Janesville is vice-ridden, that its society is perverted with scandal and it has hurt the good name of the city. The real facts of the case are that Janesville business men have tired of delay and have accomplished in sixty days what some cities take a year to do. They have wiped out the red light district, have sought to protect the youths of the city, and with the conviction of Berger and Meyer, of murder in the third degree and the greater crime, rape, with long prison terms facing them, they have dealt "gang" rule a severe blow. It has been a great fight to watch, but with grim determined men on one side arrayed against the element seeking a wide-open town and the determined men have won.

SENATOR RAYNER OF MARYLAND IS DEAD

One of Leading Members of United States Senate and Prominent Democrat Passed Away This Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Nov. 25.—Senator Rayner of Maryland one of the leading democratic members of the United States senate and a man whose name was offered to the Baltimore convention by William J. Bryan, as a suitable candidate for the presidential nomination, died here early today at the end of a long illness, resulting from continued attacks of neuritis.

Senator Rayner had been in a comatose state since last Wednesday with only one or two slight rallies. His severe illness covered a period of about six weeks dating from the efforts made in the joint political debate with Bourke Cockran of Baltimore late in September. Physicians compelled him to retire from the campaign at once after that and he returned to his Washington home where he died at 8:30 this morning.

Senator Rayner was one of the most striking figures in the senate. He had been a member of that body for almost eight years and was one of its strongest debaters and a recognized authority on matters of constitutional law. Before he entered congress he had attained a national reputation because of his vigorous conduct of the late Admiral Schley's case before the navy court of inquiry that investigates the action of American officers in the battle with Admiral Cervera's Spanish fleet.

For over five years Senator Rayner had been a sufferer from neuritis the attacks often making his work arduous and painful. His death creates a vacancy in the senate that probably will be filled by a republican through appointment by Gov. Goldsborough of Maryland.

While the legislature of that state is democratic it does not meet this winter and the republican governor's appointment will hold through the opening sessions of the next congress.

Rayner's Successor. Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25.—Friends of Gov. Goldsborough believe he will name for Senator Rayner's place, Wm. P. Jackson, Maryland's member of the republican national committee. The appointee will serve until his successor is chosen by the legislature which does not meet until January, 1914.

TAKE JOHN SCHRANK TO OSHKOSH ASYLUM TO TREAT HIS MIND

Col. Roosevelt's Assailant Will Probably Spend Balance of His Life At Northern Hospital.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25.—John Schrank, the would-be assassin of Col. Roosevelt, was taken to the Northern Hospital for the Insane near Oshkosh this forenoon by Deputy Sheriff Fred Buckler, Judge A. C. Backus of the municipal court having committed him to that institution on Friday last after a commission of alienists had adjudged him insane.

Schrank has not changed in demeanor since sentence was imposed. His disease, pronounced chronic mania and probably incurable, may result in his spending the balance of his life in the asylum. However, should he be pronounced cured, he will be returned to Milwaukee and tried for the crime with which he was charged, that of shooting with intent to kill.

Will be Kept Busy. Upon his arrival at the hospital the program called for the usual formality after which he was to be placed in a ward with others who are criminally insane.

Col. Schrank does not get violent. He will have work to do every day, said Dr. Adin Sherman, superintendent of the hospital, over the long distance telephone in speaking of the treatment to be accorded Roosevelt's assailant.

Continuing the doctor said: "First the ward will have to be taken care of with scrubbing, sweeping and the like. Then he will be allowed to work out in the open on the farm. On Sunday he will go to service and spend the day in much the same manner of thousands of other Americans except that he will be behind the bars.

Will Guard Ward. "The ward that he will be in is closely guarded. Each day that the weather is good he will be taken for a long walk and now and then he will be allowed to attend an entertainment in company with the other inmates. Should he suddenly turn violent he would be isolated and no one would be allowed near him.

His food would be given him through the door and he would be left to himself. When he would be taken out straps would be attached to his wrists and around his waist. If he should try suicide there are two methods we would pursue. I would either station a guard to be with him constantly or he would be strapped in bed so that he could not injure himself.

No Padded Cell. "No," laughed the doctor, in answer to a question as to not have the padded cell. "We are able to get along without it. There is one other thing where the general public makes a mistake. A man whose mental balance is not right is never 'harmless.' You so often hear a deranged man referred to as 'harmless.' The man who is not right is liable to do harm at any time.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PLAY AT THEATRE

Raymond Hitchcock, Theatrical Star, And Entire Chicago Company, Appeared in "The Red Widow" at Myers Theatre

Raymond Hitchcock, Chicago opera star, and the Chicago company which has been supporting him in the production of the Russian musical comedy, "The Red Widow," appeared last evening at the Myers theatre. The company, which came here with the full Chicago caste, is one of the best offerings of the present theatrical season in Janesville and the audience which attended the performance filled the opera house. A large number of people from out of town were in the audience, a special car and trailer in the regular car on the interurban being provided for the Beloit contingent alone.

The whole play centers about Hitchcock, in his role as Cecil Hannibal Butts, of Yonkers, manufacturer of corsets and cologne in the New York Guards, and the character of that whimsical gentleman, who vacillates between following his own desires and obeying the instructions of his wife, a rather domineering person, are admirably portrayed. Much opportunity is afforded for comedian work by Mr. Hitchcock, in which he showed particularly ability, and he was heartily applauded throughout the play. His part in the song, "I Shall Never Look at a Pretty Girl Again," was encored several times, and he received many curtain calls, finally responding with a witty little speech.

The plot of the play, is not particularly strong or intricate, but is so arranged as to bring about ludicrous situations that appeal very much to the sense of humor, and afford a chance for musical and dancing numbers. The dancing of Miss Minerva Coverdale, as Yvette, the music hall dancer, with George White as Oswald Butts, son of Colonel Cecil Hamilton Butts, was one of the pleasing features, particularly in the Parisienne dances and in the Valtz Ecceitrique.

Miss Flora Zabell, another well known artist, is particularly capable for her part as Anna Varvara, "The Red Widow" and a member of the group of Nihilists in Russia. Sought by officials of the Russian secret police, she poses as the wife of Col. Butts in order to secure his consent to take her to Russia with him in place of his wife, and the situations that arise after their arrival in London, particularly when she passes him off to the Nihilists as a brother anarchist and further when she and Col. Butts are visited in the hotel by police officials, who suspect her of her activities, are especially amusing to the audience. Much laughter also arises at the dilemma of Col. Butts, when the Nihilist chief presents him with a number of bombs for the destruction of members of the royalty and high officials of Russia while members of the police bureau are present.

Other members of the caste Clair Grenville, as Violet Butts, George Roman as Baron Scarcovitch, Edward Metcalf as Ivan Scarcovitch, chief of police, and George E. Mack as Captain Basil Romanoff, who is in love with the Red Widow, and for whom she abandons her purpose of assassinating the czar, are worthy of praise. The company carries with it a well trained chorus, that can both sing and dance. The scenic effects were magnificent, and all stage arrangements well carried out. The costumes and gowns worn were especially beautiful.

The company traveled by special train, the stage settings for the first act taking one entire car in itself. Janesville was the first one night stand the company played after a most successful run of many weeks in Chicago.

The remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for burial. Many of the large circle of friends of Mr. Loucks were present at the funeral and members of Florence Camp No. 356, Modern Woodmen of America, attended in a body. Those from out of the city who came to the funeral were S. L. Loucks of Kansas City, the father of the deceased, Mrs. Charles Young of Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Holister and W. H. Cheney of Delavan.

The machines were in the barn of Dr. Fox, 324 Milton avenue, and one car was entirely destroyed, the other being badly damaged. The upper picture shows the damaged machine and the lower one firemen working on the blaze.

Extensive repairs and renovation are being made at the tobacco warehouse of Haskins & Schwartz, at the Academy street crossing. The old Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul depot is undergoing so complete a change it will hardly be recognized. The roof is being raised and an addition put on the west side. When complete it will be a model warehouse. The alterations will cost in the neighborhood of eight thousand dollars.

DEBUTANTE, BRIDE, WIDOW, MOTHER—AND ALL IN COURSE OF ONE SHORT YEAR

Mrs. Lucien Smith.
In January a gay debutante at the national capital; in February the happy bride of a young West Virginian whose future seemed full of promise; in April a widow, made so by the wreck of the Titanic which took her husband, but spared her, in November a mother—that is what the stars foretold for Miss Eloise Hughes, daughter of Congressman James A. Hughes, of West Virginia, just one year ago. She and young Lucien Smith were married in February, and were on the Titanic returning from their honeymoon trip to Europe when fate took him. Mrs. Smith is now in a Cincinnati hospital awaiting the birth of an heir, an event which will occur this month.

SHE'S ANXIOUS TO GET BACK TO PANAMA

Mrs. George W. Goethals, wife of the man who is boasting Uncle Sam's big job down at Panama, is visiting friends in Washington. She says she is anxious to get back to the canal zone again.
"I have been away several months and I can hardly wait for my return home," Mrs. Goethals recently declared. "I want to go over every foot of ground and see every new step taken in the building of the canal. I will be glad to get back to my home with its great screened porch, its lovely garden of tropical flowers, and the sound of the engines coming up from the cut."

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

While business is jogging along, with no surface indications to warrant a disturbance, the undercurrent, in many lines, shows a disposition to hesitate, and this is always the forerunner of more, or less depression. This is the season of the year when western manufacturers get out their catalogue work for next year's business, and commercial printing shops are usually overrun with work, but today, all through the west, they are idle and men are being laid off.
This of course is a small industry, but it is a reliable barometer of a larger field, and always indicates which way the wind blows. Other lines are showing the same disposition, both east and west, and while there are no indications of a panic, there will be more or less enforced idleness, during the winter, and until the question of what the new congress will do with the tariff, is definitely settled. The following paragraph from a New York financial letter, indicates conditions in the east:
"A good deal of preliminary work on tariff and banking will be done in the committee rooms this winter, which though not utilized during the Taft administration will be influential in shaping tariff or financial legislation during Mr. Wilson's regime. Mr. Wilson has announced his intention of calling an extra session for the purpose of shortening the period of uncertainty, and the work done this winter should materially aid prompt action next spring. At the very earliest, it would seem as if six or seven months must elapse before any new legislation really goes into effect. During this period it need cause no surprise if business exhibits more or less hesitancy, for neither merchants nor manufacturers can well undertake important new operations extending into the future while this disturbing element of uncertainty remains."
Consumption of merchandise will of course go on as usual; so the retail trades will be less likely to feel the effects of hesitation than the wholesale trades. Meanwhile both merchants and manufacturers will carry as small stocks as possible, and business may therefore become of a hand-to-mouth character; a fact of course which will not increase industrial activity. After this period of hesitancy is over, and if nothing unforeseen develops, it is reasonable to anticipate renewed activity in all departments, since our markets will be bare of goods and high prices will tempt a rapid increase in production."

A REBATE TALE.

"No," said a prominent shipper, recently. "I don't believe the railroads are taking any chances on giving rebates these days, but in years gone by business was on an entirely different basis."
"I remember once when a railroad agent called upon a shipper and was trying to collect a bill of some $5,536.78. The creditor hemmed and hawed over the matter without either refusing to pay or handing over a check until finally the transportation man realized that a little 'grease' was needed.

"Spying the office Tabby, he expressed his undying admiration for her and asked how much would induce the shipper to part with the animal.
"Oh'm replied the other, glancing at his bill, 'I think a lot of that cat but as a personal favor I'll sell her to you for just $536.78.'
"The purchase was consummated at that figure and the shipper then settled his account.
"That was one method of giving a rebate. Whether the charge went on the railroad's books as 'To one cat—$536.78,' is of course, another tale."
This little story from an exchange is a reminder of the days when every merchant had a pass to the nearest market, and when the majority of passengers, on many trains, were "dead-heads." The days when the man who couldn't secure a pass, cultivated the conductor, for anything to beat a railroad, was considered legitimate.
The question of whether or not a man can be made morally good by law, has always been debatable, but the question that many temptations to violate, can be removed by law, is not debatable. This is what the government has accomplished on the rebate offenders, both great and small.
The man who solicits a pass today is classed with the Standard Oil company, and all because the standard of business morality has been elevated through the influence of wholesome laws.
The agitation, which led to these reforms, by arousing public sentiment, is justly credited to Theodore Roosevelt, and present day prejudices, however bitter, can not rob him of the glory, of his achievements, along this line.
He blazed the trail, and quickened the public conscience to a finer sense of appreciation on questions of right and wrong, and the nation is morally stronger, because of this awakening.

SPEEDY JUSTICE.

People who anticipated a long, drawn-out trial, in the case of the boys convicted of murder, last Friday night, are disappointed, for while they were given the benefit of the best defense to be offered, the wheels of justice were not retarded, and speedy conviction followed.
The charge of murder is a serious charge, and conviction demands more than a reasonable doubt. The burden of proof rests with the district attorney, and while many counties provide this official with funds to prosecute his work, Rock county makes no such provision.
This is the situation which confronted Stanley G. Dunwiddie when he started out the morning after the murder to make a thorough investigation, and locate the witnesses necessary to a fair and impartial trial. It was not an easy task, for the smallest details were important, but the district attorney was equal to the occasion, and when the case was presented, the thoroughness and intelligence of his work was recognized.
From the commencement of the trial until the case went to the jury, the same ability was displayed, and Mr. Dunwiddie established for himself a reputation, which gratifies his many friends, and gives promise of a successful future.
He was ably assisted in his work by Attorney Charles T. Pierce, but Mr. Pierce gives the district attorney credit for all the honor in handling the case.

HEDGING ON NAMESAKES.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Kyler of Dennison, Texas, have done their part to prevent race suicide by giving to their country three healthy boys, born October 29. The parents determined that if the baby should be a boy he should be named after the President elected on November 5. As triplets were born, there was no difficulty in realizing their ambition to name a child after the President-to-be. So they called one William Howard Taft Kyler, another Theodore Roosevelt Kyler, and the other Woodrow Wilson Kyler. The day before the election the parents sent a telegram to the White House, announcing the birth and names of their three boys, and Assistant Secretary Bralney sent back a telegram in the President's name, wishing the triplets long life and prosperity. It has been the custom in all ages to call children after the great men of the world. In this country there have been babies named after every President. Almost any way we turn we can find a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, an Andrew Jackson, an Abraham Lincoln, a U. S. Grant, a William McKinley, a Grover Cleveland, a Theodore Roosevelt, or a William Taft.—The Christian Herald.

Texas is a great state and the Kyler are contributing their share to the growing population. They ought to cut out one of the presidents and name one of the boys Andrew Carnegie. The wealthy Scotchman still has money to burn, and if his plan to endow the ex-president's falls, he might be induced to finance a namesake in Texas.

The Board of Arbitration, which has been considering the demands of railway engineers for more pay, has made its report, and fifty-two eastern roads and 30,000 employees are affected. The new schedule, which dates May 1st, 1912, and continues for a year, calls for an advance, and while much less than first demanded, the increase will be felt by the roads, with no way to meet it except by economy, as over-regulation prevents increase of revenue. The board also decided that wages could not be advanced, all along the line, which will doubtless prevent further demands.

In another part of the paper will be found a protest by the railroads of the country against the injustice which the parcels post law places upon them, by demanding largely increased service without compensation. This injustice is so glaring that the railroads submit their case to the people, believing that public sentiment will be with them when the conditions are understood. While railroads, as public carriers, enjoy some special privileges, they are not public property, and do not belong to the government. There is no reason why they should be expected to serve either the government or the people for nothing, or at a loss. If the parcels post is a good thing, the people ought to be willing to pay the freight.

The plea of Joseph Ettor, the Italian socialist, now on trial for murder, in connection with the Lawrence strike, has so aroused his countrymen in Italy, that they demand his release. Ettor poses as a martyr to a great principle, and while asking nothing for himself, warns America of results which may obtain, if he and his comrades are condemned to suffer the death penalty. The mob which these men are accused of inciting, caused the death of a woman. The men are likely to be convicted and the court will be obliged to determine what claims, if any, socialism has for clemency. It is to be regretted that American mills are so largely dependent upon this class of labor.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Never Again.
The poets bawl
Of gentle fall
In language that is rich,
They hang a bluff,
And sell the stuff
To magazines and such.
They rave and shout
And rhyme about
The fragrance of the air.
And of the joy
Without alloy.
That lingers everywhere.
But when it snows
And rains and blows,
And does a dozen stunts
With hail and sleet
And lightning sheet,
And does 'em all at once,
When Nature drops
And deftly flops.
A backhand somersault,
A thing right now
You will allow
It's time to call a halt.
My lyre is still
And never will
Twang for you as of yore.
Oh, Autumn, you
Can sure go to—
I'll boose your game no more.

How to Become Famous.

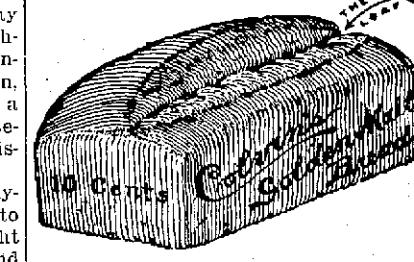

We have a letter from a young man who is yearning to become famous, having tired of the humdrum of a buibonic existence. We are asked to put him on the road to fame. It is not so very difficult. If the young man will just follow any one of the suggestions appended hereto he will have his full name in large letters on the first page of every newspaper in the country.

Sure Signs.

If you forget to hand the waiter a little something it is a sure sign that you are going to have a little soup down the back of your neck the next time you call.
If you see a man pawing around with his front hoof like a boss, trying to find something to put it on, it is a sign that he often dallies in front of the polished mahogany.
If your wife begins early in the morning to pay you compliments and forgets to hand you one for getting home late at night, it is a sign that she is going to have a new hat or a sealskin coat.
If you see a particular friend of yours sailing along your direction in a new automobile it is a sure sign that he is not going to ask you to jump in and have a ride.

THE LAND OF LITTLE CARE.

The name of S. E. Kiser is familiar to newspaper readers throughout the country and especially in the west. Mr. Kiser is a writer of human interest poems, and many of his productions are gems of rare beauty, because they touch the heart and cause it to beat in sympathy.
"The Land of Little Care" is a neatly bound little book of Kiser's poems. It contains 144 pages of choice selections, and is put on the market by the publishers, P. F. Voland and company, of Chicago, just in time for Christmas. The price of the book is $1.00, bound in crash buckram; or $1.50 in natural leather.

Always an 'Anti-Climax.'

It is always reassuring to read of some millionaire's son who, dressed in overalls, has taken up some hard, grimy job at a few dollars a week, just as a poor farmer's or mechanic's son might do. But his election, in a few weeks, to the directorship or vice presidency of his father's business shows a growth that boys of more humble parentage can hardly hope to equal.—Christian Science Monitor.

COUNTY'S SHARE IN THE PENSION FUND

For School Teachers Amounting to $933.07 is Sent to State Treasurer Today.

Rock county's share toward the retirement fund for school teachers amounting to $933.07, was sent to the state treasurer at Madison today by County Treasurer A. M. Church. The collections are made by the various districts, the percentage of salary due the fund being retained from the salaries of teachers who have elected to come under the pension law. Nearly one half of the total amount of money collected for the fund in this county comes from the city of Janesville, whose teachers contribute $462.67. The village of Orfordville is at the bottom with fifty cents. The city of Beloit gives but $172.25, owing to the fact that there are a large number of young teachers who did not elect to come under the law.

Amounts received from the other cities and townships are as follows: Edgerton, $37.85; Clinton village, $5.43; Evansville, $8.65; Fulton, $9.55; Spring Valley, $8.72; Lima, $24.44; Harmony, $19.45; Porter, $5.60; Avoca, $10.95; Johnston, $14.60; Center, $8.45; Plymouth, $9.40; Clinton, $6.35; Union, $11.80; Turtle, $6.30; Milton village, $16.20; Milton township, $29.75; Magnolia, $12.35; Newark, $3.20; Janesville, $9.55; La Prairie, $8.55; Beloit, $20.54; Rock, $6.00; Orfordville, $0.50.

FULTON BEING HELD AT THE COUNTY JAIL

Edward Fulton, who is charged with attempting to murder Mrs. Effa Gunderson at Beloit on Friday night, and who attempted to kill himself after he severely wounded her, is held at the county jail pending his examination which is set for Dec. 2 at the Beloit municipal court. Fulton was brought to the jail Saturday night being so far recovered that it was thought safe to remove him from the emergency hospital. Application was made to Attorney Thomas S. Nolan to defend him, but owing to pressing business at this time, Mr. Nolan was unable to take the case. Mrs. Gunderson was removed from the emergency hospital to her home in Beloit today. Her condition is not serious.

CIVIL CASES HEARD IN JUSTICE COURTS TODAY.

Plaintiffs in Three Cases Received Judgments, While Two Other Suits Were Adjudged.

In Justice Stanley Tallman's court this morning, judgments for plaintiffs in three civil actions were ordered, and a fourth case was adjudged. In the action of Emma Matson against George H. Bahr, a replevin of household goods, judgment for $25 and costs for the plaintiff was ordered. Judgment of $13 and costs was ordered in favor of W. H. Taylor, in the action brought by him against Charles Collins, for the amount alleged to be due on a grocery bill. The action brought by William Hillman against Frank Andrews for the amount alleged due on an account, was ended when a judgment for $19.43 in favor of the defendant was ordered. The case of Mary E. Buob versus William E. Lawyer, was adjudged to December 2.

In Justice Charles Lange's court, the case of Charles Williams against David Weir was adjourned one month, and efforts will be made to bring about a settlement out of court.

PHILOMATHIAN CLUB HAS FINE PROGRAM

Members Are Entertained Saturday at Home of Mrs. J. P. Thorne—Women's Activities.

The Philomathian club met on Saturday afternoon with Mrs. J. P. Thorne and a very interesting program was presented. The club this year has taken up the different phases of woman's activities in present day affairs. In a response to roll call several new books written by women were mentioned and reviewed. Then an entertaining resume of the work of Janesville's talented composer, Carrie Jacobs Bond, was given by Mrs. Lillian Biddy. She spoke of the artistic form and the unique character of the work done by the Bond publishing house and also of the public appreciation given to that lady's recitals wherever she has appeared. A group of her charming songs were also rendered by Mrs. Biddy with Mrs. Murdoch as accompanist.

A thoughtful favor on the new novel, "Julia France and Her Time," was given by Miss Ida Harris, who outlined the story as a play with the characters moving across the stage, through the narrative. A sketch of the authoress, Gertrude Atherton, was given by Mrs. May Garst, and a reading from the book by Mrs. Powell.

The literary program was concluded by a paper on Clara Barton and the Red Cross work by Mrs. Weirick. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Thorne.

GOVERNMENT AGENTS VISITED JANESVILLE

Representatives of Department of Justice Investigating White Slave Traffic Were Here.

James G. Findlay, and C. R. Nixon of Washington, special agents of the Department of Justice, who are investigating the white slavery evil throughout the country were in Janesville for about an hour Thursday. Both conferred with Chief of Police George Appleby, and finding that all immoral women had been ordered to leave the city did not find it worth while to spend more time here. They went from this city to Beloit. The two agents, who are both young lawyers, conversed of their business and disclosures in a general manner, but refused to state particulars. It was learned however that the white slavery evil is prevalent to an unusual extent in the northwestern part of the state, in the lumbering and mining regions. It is the business of the special agents in the towns where there are houses of ill-repute, to appoint an agent to watch them. Those who maintain such places must notify

DEVICE FOR PLANTING TREES

Piece of Board About Seven Feet Long With Notch in Middle Will Be Found Convenient.

After the ground has been laid out for the planting of trees, by means of stakes straight in all directions, the device as shown in the cut will be a great help in getting the trees exactly where the stake has stood.

Take a board about seven feet long, notch it on one side in the middle,

DEVICE FOR PLANTING TREES

Having an inch hole bored through the center near each end. Lay down the board with notch to the stake. Insert pegs through the end holes into the soil. Lift one end of the board and swing around. Now the hole should be dug. When ready to receive the tree, swing back the board in place. In planting, place the tree in the notch so that it will bring it exactly where the stake stood.

JAPANESE PLUM QUITE HARDY

Particularly Popular With Eastern Growers on Account of Early Maturity and Plumpness.

Plums of the Japanese variety are popular with most growers, particularly in the east, because they are hardy and come on early. Many of these varieties are the earliest in the market, and as they are always of good color, either cherry reds or light yellows, they sell readily and bring good prices.

They will grow well on almost any kind of decent soil, and do not need to be particularly coddled, although they should have all the care that any good fruit tree deserves.

These trees were planted four years ago in soil from which pine scrub had been grubbed only a few weeks before. The trees are bearing well and show fine color and great vigor.

The Japanese plum differs from the domestic varieties in that its leaves are longer, thinner and smoother, and it has a greater tendency to produce lateral fruit buds on the annual growth. Its fruit is mostly short, round and plump.

The Japanese plum is less liable to injury from curculio and black-knot than the domestic variety. Mr. Fullerton says that up to this time his trees have shown no signs of disease or attack from insects of any kind.

GRAPES FRESH ALL WINTER

French Growers Cut Bunches in Such Way That Part of Vine Can Be Placed in Water.

A clever French process by which vine growers in France are able to market fresh outdoor grapes all through the winter is thus described. Bunches of the finest grapes when ripe in autumn are cut in such a way that to each bunch a piece of the vine five or six inches long remains attached. From this piece the stems of the bunch hang, an arrangement vitally necessary to the success of the operation.

A large number of the wide-mouth bottles, filled with water, is ranged in a cellar and in the open end of each is inserted the pieces of vine stem, the bunches of grapes hanging outside. The grapes do not touch the water, but are thus supplied with moisture through the vine stem, which is immersed in water. By this process choice varieties of table grapes are kept in perfect condition for the whole winter.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

OCONOSTOTA.

Oconostota, king of the Creeks and Cherokees, lord of thousands of square miles of territory, leader of 20,000 warriors, has been called "the chief who lived forever." Probably because no one knows when he was born or when he died.

In 1730 he was one of a delegation of Indian chiefs who crossed the Atlantic and visited King George II. of England. At that time he was already a grown man and a famous warrior. In 1809—eighty years later—he was still alive. For in a letter of that date David Meigs, Cherokee Indian agent, writes that "greasy old Oconostota" had just visited him.

The aged chief was therefore in all probability long past his hundredth year when he journeyed to Meigs's home. Incidentally, he had lived to sink from king to outcast tramp.

Oconostota was chosen king of the Cherokees and of their Creek allies in 1738. He was a giant, of unbelievable bodily strength, and with the courage of an angry wildcat. He ruled his "nation" with a tyrant's sway that none dared dispute.

France and England went to war, the French seeking to gain mastery of all North America. Oconostota threw his mighty influence on the side of the English. But, for the tactless brutality of certain British settlers he and his savage army would have proved valuable allies. But a party of frontiersmen accused some of his braves of stealing their horses. The Indians denied the charge—whether truthfully or not—and the colonists undertook to punish the theft by attacking one of Oconostota's villages.

An Injury Avenged.

This was enough to turn Oconostota's friendship to hate. With 10,000 warriors he attacked the two British forts of London and Prince George, and at the same time sent a throng of scalping parties through the defenseless settlements of North and South Carolina. The garrison of Fort London was starved into surrender, while the Prince George commander and many of his soldiers were slain. Oconostota promised the two hundred inmates of Fort London a safe passage into Virginia. But during the first day of their march thither he turned loose his bloodthirsty savages upon them. The only restraining influence through all these days of horror and death was exercised by Oconostota's lieutenant (or "vice-king," as the colonists called him), Atakullakulla, a dwarfish, gentle chieftain, who again and again interfered to soften his king's barbarities.

The British avenged the murderous campaign of Oconostota by ravaging the whole Cherokee country with fire and sword. Nor would they pause in the fierce work of vengeance until Atakullakulla begged for mercy in behalf of his luckless people. Oconostota had learned his lesson. He henceforth loudly declared the British nation the greatest on earth and himself as its truest friend.

For a time he seemed to include the American settlers in his loyalty to the British government. For he allowed pioneers to build homes upon his tribal land at Watauga. He even received them kindly and leased ground to them. But in 1775 the settlers now more numerous, demanded large tracts in Kentucky and elsewhere. Then Oconostota saw the danger and struggled to overcome it. To the Cherokee council he was discussing the question of giving up the land to the settlers he made an impassioned speech; prophesying that the Indians would in time be swept from the earth if they let the white men continue to seize their hunting grounds. The council overruled his objections and made a treaty with the pioneers, selling them the desired land. When the treaty was signed Oconostota turned to Daniel Boone, who had been prime mover in the affair, and said:

"Young man, we have let you take much land from us. But I fear you will find that land hard to live in."

His veiled threat was destined to be most amply fulfilled. Almost at once the Revolutionary war broke out. Oconostota eagerly offered his services to the British. With 20,000 braves at his back, he fell upon the frontier settlements, spreading havoc in his wake. But in the five years of border warfare that followed between his savages and the American militia Oconostota was again and again beaten.

From King to Tramp.

These constant defeats weakened the old chief's influence with the Indians. At last his people rose against him, deposed him from the rank of head chief, or king, and put a younger, more peaceful leader in his place. Such a fall from power was too much for Oconostota's pride. He became an outcast, took to drink, and spent his declining years tramping as a beggar through the country he had once ruled; keeping alive by begging or stealing from the very settlers whom he had sought to destroy. When he could find any one to listen to him he would spend hours weeping and bewailing his lost "kingdom."

And so—a forgotten, drunken vagabond—he passed out of history. None knows what at last befell him, nor when or how he died.

SUFFRAGISTS TURN FACES TOWARD PHILADELPHIA; CONVENTION IN QUAKER CITY THIS YEAR TO BE MOST ENTHUSIASTIC EVER

A big suffrage convention, probably the biggest and the most enthusiastic in the history of the suffrage movement, is to be held in Philadelphia Nov. 21-22. The most prominent suffrage workers from every state will be in attendance. The work of the past year will be reviewed and plans laid for the capture of another half-dozen states next year.

Among those who will take part in the program are Rev. Anna H. Shaw, acting president of the national association; Baroness Bertha von Suttner, suffrage worker of Austria now assisting in the movement in America; Kate Gordon and Laura Clay, of Louisiana and Kentucky, respectively, who are among the most prominent suffrage workers in the south; and Julia C. Lathrop, directors of the federal children's bureau at Washington.

RED RUIN OF MASSACRE AND OUTRAGE FEARED IF VICTORIOUS ALLIES ENTER TURKISH CAPITAL; MOSLEMS HUMAN WOLVES

"At any moment the storm may break and involve us in the red ruin of massacre and outrage," writes the Constantinople correspondent of a London newspaper. "For 500 years the Turk has lorded it over the infidel. The last hours of that ascendancy, it is feared, may be dyed in blood."

Over fifty warships of the European powers are now in Turk waters. If the threatened massacre of Christians in Constantinople is begun these warships will assist the allies in curbing the infuriated Moslems.

Anger a Sign of Weakness. Anger is always a sign of weakness. It is our irritation at our own impotence. It is the fire of the spirit blazing up against the inevitable. When we know we are superior, when we know we are conscious of greater power than our adversary's, we are always calm.

He Knew. "Daughter," called the conventional, comic-paper father from his regular position at the top of the stairs, at the well-known hour of 11:55 p. m., "doesn't that young man know how to say good night?" "Does he?" echoed the young lady in the darkened hall, "well, I should say he does."

Perfectly Natural Inquiry. "Next thing I knew he hit his father with an axe," the old man chased him for miles, firing at him with a blunderbuss all the while. Then the neighbors joined in. "Hold on. Are you telling me about a nightmare or a moving picture show?"—Kansas City Journal.

A dance held aboard ship is usually dependent upon fair weather and smooth seas. The only dancing floor available is usually some part of the promenade deck, which must be screened against the wind. The attractive ball-room illustrated above is one of the newest and most attractive luxuries which may now be enjoyed in sea travel. The high domed ceiling, broad windows and general air of artistic spaciousness does not suggest the cabin of a steamer. This ball-room, which is aboard the S. S. Victoria Luise of the Hamburg-American Line, is equipped with a perfect dancing floor, while an overlooking balcony holds the orchestra. By day the hall serves as a sun parlor. The ball-room, of course, is independent of the weather, while the Frahm Anti-rolling tanks on this steamer render the floor steady enough for dancing, even in high seas.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS OF ALLIES NOT SUFFICIENTLY CARED FOR; MANY DIE IN HOSPITALS WHILE THOUSANDS ARE LOST ON FIELD

Wounded Servians being removed from the field.

War correspondents who are stationed in Serbia and Bulgaria report that the wounded soldiers of the allies are not being sufficiently cared for. Hospital facilities are inadequate to meet the situation. Many thousands have been wounded, and hundreds are dying who with proper surgical and medical treatment could be saved. The losses of the allies in the field are also appalling. The flower of the Bulgarian army has been decimated. Peace will be welcomed by a people who have suffered such heavy losses.

HORRORS OF BALKAN WAR NOT CONFINED TO THE BATTLEFIELD; CHILDREN ORPHANED BY TURKISH BULLETS ASK STATE FOR FOOD

Greek children waiting for free food.

The tragedy of the Balkan war is found not alone on the battlefields, where thousands lie dead and other thousands have been wounded. The families of the soldiers back home are suffering from hunger and want. Many children have been orphaned and a large percentage of these must look to the state for assistance. In the accompanying picture are seen Greek children orphaned by Turkish bullets waiting for free food at one of the relief stations in Athens.

Mrs. James Garvey.

Mrs. James Garvey, of Los Angeles, recently had a thrilling experience while fishing for sharks with other passengers of an ocean liner off the coast of Salvador. A half grown man eater grabbed the bait on the line which she held and had it not been for her screams for help she would have been pulled into the water. The shark was landed.

Later, a dozen of the passengers got into a little canoe designed for four persons and started for the shore. The sharks followed them and the whole company all but lost their lives.

Smelled a Graft.

A Boston clubman recently returned from a visit to New York City. In discussing his trip one of his friends asked him whether he had a policeman in his pocket. The clubman hesitated for a moment, seriously questioning his friend's sanity, when the latter added: "I didn't know whether you could be there a week without some graft or other getting into your pocket."

An unusual occurrence took place at Notgrove, Gloucestershire, England, recently. A boy of two and a girl of three were playing beside a large trough, when the boy fell into the water. The little girl ran to the boy's mother and in hissing tones said, "Babby in water." The mother ran to the trough, took the boy out, and with assistance brought him round.

Why Bauers? Because every man in the world—famous Theodore Thomas Orchestra, is a MASTER OF TONE, and so sensitive to TONE QUALITY, that nothing but THE PERFECT COULD BE TOLERATED. The great Paderewski has publicly expressed the opinion that FREDERICK STOCK IS THE GREATEST of American musicians. Put this and that together, and see if it does not mean more to you than the three words—"piano used," on the bottom of a concert program, for which the Piano Co. pays the famous pianist $25,000 a season. 55 years at the head of its class, is the record of the Julius Bauer piano. MANY GOOD THINGS FOR THANKSGIVING

Turkeys, Fowls, and All Sorts of Fancy Fruits and Vegetables Offered on the Local Markets.

All kinds of good things for the housewife to set on her table for Thanksgiving Day, are offered in the local markets and the difficulty will be mainly in selecting those delicacies which she prefers above the others that are offered. With fresh fruit and vegetables coming in, she will have a wide variety to select from, after she has settled the question of what the meat courses shall consist.

Of course the main question connected with Thanksgiving concerns the price of turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens. Naturally the Thanksgiving bird is the first considered, and the head of the household, or whoever does the buying considers whether or not the price will be too high for the average purse. If the birds come at too high a figure, the thrifty ones naturally turn to the other species of fowls, making their selections according to individual tastes.

Turkeys, local dealers say, will be about the same price as last year, although the prices may vary one or two cents higher or lower than in 1911. There seems to be plenty coming into the market, and according to the retailers the prices will be from twenty-two to twenty-five cents. Chickens and geese are selling at about fifteen cents, while ducks vary in price from fifteen to twenty cents a pound.

Cranberries, always associated with the thoughts of turkey and the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, will probably be a little higher than they have been selling for on the market. It is predicted today. Present prices are from ten to fifteen cents, but there will probably be an increase of a few cents per pound. The Wisconsin cranberry is less than that of last year, and crops elsewhere are reported to be shorter than usual.

In the line of fruits, the tangerines are the newest on the market, having arrived but a few days ago. They sell for thirty-five cents a dozen. Brussels sprouts and green onions are coming, and of the other vegetables offered, there are tomatoes, wax beans, radishes and cauliflower.

Prices are quoted on the new crop of nuts, which have been placed on the markets recently. Hickory nuts are selling at five cents a pound or six pounds for a quarter; black walnuts at thirty-five cents a peck, Brazil nuts, fifteen to eighteen cents a pound; Paradise nuts, fifteen to eighteen cents; almonds, twenty-two to twenty-five cents; and other nuts accordingly. The quotations on the market today were as follows:

New potatoes, 45c@50c bu.; home grown cabbage, 5 cents; head lettuce, 2 bunches 5 cents; 25c a box; head lettuce, 10c@20c; parsley, 5c bunch; California tomatoes, 10c lb; beets, 2c lb; green onions, 2 bunches 5c; green peppers, 3 for 5c; home grown turnips, 2c lb; red peppers, 2 for 25c, 25c doz.; cauliflower, 15c @20c; white onions, 3c lb; Spanish onions, 6c lb; oranges, 20c@50c doz; celery, 5c bunch; sweet potatoes, 8 lbs. for 25c; home grown spinach, 8c lb; dill, 5c bundle; egg plants 15 cents; pumpkins, 10c; red cabbage, 5c head; Hubbard squash, 10c@15c each; parsnips, 3c lb; yellow wax beans, 10 lb; beets, 25c peck; cucumbers, 15c@18c each; rutabagas, 2c lb; vegetable oysters, 5c bunch; carrots, 2c lb; popcorn, 3 lb. for 25c.

Change Orders.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Realizing the possibility of rapid and important developments in the Balkan war the navy department has slightly changed the itinerary of the big cruisers Tennessee and Montana now on the way to the Orient in command of Admiral Knight. Admiral Knight on the Tennessee instead of going direct from Gibraltar to Smyrna has headed first for Malta while the Montana which was destined for Beirut has started for Port Said at the entrance of the Suez canal.

Why Snakes Are Blind.

Rattlesnakes as well as other species of the snake family are blind three, sometimes four, times a year. As a rule they shed their skins in the spring, midsummer and fall, during which time there is a short period of a few days in which they are more or less blind, causing them to be more dangerous. When they are shedding their skins they also shed the eye covering, thus causing blindness.—St. Nicholas.

Wonders of the World.

In ancient times the Seven Wonders of the World were generally reckoned as follows: The pyramids of Egypt, the hanging gardens of Babylon, the mausoleum at Halicarnassus, the temple of Diana at Ephesus, the colossus of Rhodes, the Pharos at Alexandria and the statue of the Olympian Jove in Elis.

At The Theatre

"A MODERN EVE."
Theatre-goers will see for the first time here at the Myers theatre on Wednesday evening, Nov. 27, Mort H. Singer's latest and biggest musical comedy, "A Modern Eve."

The fame of some of its musical numbers has preceded it and are hummed and whistled in all parts of the country; among the most popular are "Good-bye Everybody," "Is the Girl You Married Still the Girl You Love," "Lonesome Moon," "Rita, My Margarine," and "Every Day is Christmas When You're Married." "A Modern Eve" has scored heavy in Chicago where it was first produced last April and ran for twenty weeks at the Garrick theatre to the largest houses ever known for a summer engagement. In fact, capacity houses were the rule. The attraction was forced to leave the Garrick to make room for previous house contracts that could not be set back further and was moved to the Princess theatre where it continued its record-breaking run. Mr. Singer is sending to this city the same company that delighted the music-lovers of Chicago. Same production and all that goes with it and promises an attraction in every way up to his established high standard.

"TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY."

"Tess of the Storm Country" is a story of the re-incarnation of a shoddy, wild, and irresponsible tom-boy, the daughter of a squatter fisherman on the banks of the mysterious Lake Cayuga, persecuted to the verge of desperation by the enactment of game laws that all but leaves the settlement of fisherfolk on the verge of starvation. Particularly bitter against these poor folks is the Pastor upon whose land "Tess" and her father live in a shack. Ben Letts a neighbor falls in love with "Tess," if love be a name for his wild and ungovernable desire for her, becoming aware that "Tess" is in love with Frederick Graves the student and son of the pastor, he becomes enraged and begins to plot to remove all obstacles from his path. The drama begins by murdering the Game Warden in such a manner as to throw suspicion upon "Om" Skinner, father of "Tess," and to effectually quiet all trace of his guilt in the murder he throws "Ezra" Longman the only witness of the crime, off the rocks into the "hoghole" from which there seems no possible way of escape. "Tess" while straying aimlessly through the woods brooding over her father's arrest is startled by "Teola" Graves sister of Frederick whom she finds in a pitiable condition. "Tess" half carries and half drags her to her shack where "Teola" gives birth to a child, to shield the sister of her lover, who is fear-stricken of her stern father, "Tess" sacrifices her own good name to shield the other woman from the shame of an expose. This theme forms the nucleus of remarkable dramatic situations and scenes, and of course as all popular plays and novels all ends happily, with "Tess" transformed from a cocoon into a beautiful butterfly and achieving her hearts desire. Comes to Myers theatre for 2 performances only, Nov. 28 Thanksgiving.

Comfort in the Thought.

Patricia possesses the four-year-old's usual aversion to water for cleansing purposes and is most sparing of its application to her small face. The other evening before going to bed she gave her reflection in the mirror a careful scrutiny and remarked: "Well, my face is pretty clean. I believe I'll do for tomorrow."

The Hypocrite.

Really to be a hypocrite must require a horrible strength of character. An ordinary man such as you or I generally falls at last because he has not enough energy to be a man. But the hypocrite must have enough to be two men.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

DEFECTS ARE CITED IN INCOME TAX LAW

Taxpayers Will, However, Pay for the Errors in This Year's Administration of the Law.

January is not so far away and the tax assessor is already busy compiling his yearly "bullet" for citizens who own property or are subject to taxation. This year the taxpayer will have the unique pleasure of paying both the regular tax and an income tax as well. There are many who believe the workings of the income tax are wrong, that they have not met the desired end and that the assessment of Rock county has not been properly adjusted. Beloit strenuously objected to the ruling of the income assessor, succeeded in having its total valuations reduced somewhat, but did not have much sympathy from the county at large. Even if the next legislature should repeal the income tax law, of which there is little hope, the taxpayers would have to pay for this year's experiment.

The amendments to this latest bit of radical legislation will be one of the principal features of the legislative session of 1913. That it must be amended, and materially, even its strongest supporters admit. While it was put through this year almost by force of arms, it was seen that in order to make it workable, without such an amount of friction as to make it more and more odious in the eyes of the people of the state, many and some drastic changes must be made.

Changes Still in Doubt.
What shape these changes will take is a matter of conjecture. It has been announced that the tax commission has been working on amendments which, it is asserted, will make the law more smooth in its operation, but if so the commission has succeeded up to date in bottling up the features which they will suggest. Gov. McGovern, in his appearance before the Westminster league in Milwaukee just before election, stated that the law would be greatly amended. The governor at that time said that he would favor a shorter and less inquisitorial return, the doing away with the necessity for a notary's signature to the return, and permitting those who did not come under the income tax to say so without the necessity of coming before the supervisor of incomes at expense of time and money. These were the only amendments which the governor expressed himself in favor of, though he admitted that there were many other changes necessary in order to make the law work smoothly.

In addition to the changes suggested by Gov. McGovern there is a belief that the features of the law providing for the including of the rental value of a homestead as part of the income of the owner ought to be amended as an encouragement of thrift which finds little encouragement under the present provisions. It is also probable that an attempt will be made to increase the exemptions. Another thing said to demand a change is the feature regarding exemptions for people dependent on taxpayers for support. This was one of the features of the law which was pushed to the front in the legislature of 1911 by its advocates as showing that ample provision was made to lift the burdens of the income tax so far as possible. It was pointed out that for every dependent on taxpayers an exemption of $200 was permitted.

Clause Found Defective.
This was accepted at its face value, and it was supposed the law in this regard meant just what it said. When the law had been passed and was on the statute books the tax commission called attention to the fact that the word dependents meant "legal dependents," which was another matter entirely, as beyond his wife and children a man had no persons legally dependent on him. Consequently, if he was supporting a father or mother, unless they were helpless, or relatives outside of minor children, he was entitled to no exemption whatever in such case, he had to pay the tax just the same on the money which he used to support these dependents. There will unquestionably be an attempt to correct this valuable injustice.

Several attempts have been made to secure statements from the members of the tax commission regarding amendments to the law, but the commissioners have been chary of giving out anything. Where they have been quoted explanations and corrections have followed. The commissioners are working on amendments, it is admitted, but what they will bring forth will not be known until the legislature is about ready to convene.

So far as the manufacturing interests of the state are concerned, there has, it is stated, been nothing done in the way of preparing amendments to the present law, much as they are to be desired. So far as can be learned the manufacturers will wait and see what is proposed by the commission in the way of relieving burdens which the industries of the state are now carrying. If these amendments do not meet the need others will be prepared by the manufacturing interests and presented to the legislature for passage.

Mankind Analyzed.

The man who lives quite up to the best standards of his age, of his people, of his neighbors, is not a bad man. The one who lives on a scale considerably above that of his age is a good man, no matter how much he may fall below the higher standard of an age more refined, enlightened and civilized.

Building a House.

One of the greatest pleasures of life is to build a house for one's self. There is a peculiar satisfaction even in planting a tree from which you hope to eat the fruit, or in the shade of which you hope to repose. But how much greater the pleasure in planting the roof-tree, the tree that bears the golden apples of home and hospitality, and under the protection of which you hope to pass the remainder of your days.—John Burroughs.

BIG SOCIAL UPEHAVAL DUE IN CAPITAL WHEN DEMOCRATS TAKE CONTROL MARCH 4

Washington.—With the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson, on March 4, and the reinstatement of the Democratic party in all branches of government, Washington will undergo a social upheaval. Names that have shone brightly for years on the social register will be scratched off and others take their places. Crests and monograms will be painted off the panels of smart carriages and automobiles and others will be drawn in their stead. Houses will change owners with wonderful rapidity. All will be changed, and it will indeed be the greatest metamorphosis that Washington has ever known.

Take the cabinet, for instance. Many of its members who must soon step down and out have served for years. The secretary of agriculture, James Wilson, has served in that capacity for 15 years. Secretary of State Knox came to Washington in

DINNER STORIES

Fred Kelley the Ohio humorist, says a wealthy family in Cleveland, who were beginning to put on a lot of airs, hired a colored girl just arrived from the South to act as their serving maid. Her new mistress insisted that all meals should be served in courses. Even when there wasn't very much to eat it was brought to the table in courses.

At the end of the week the girl threw up her job. Being pressed for a reason for quitting so suddenly, she said:

"I'll tell you, lady—in dis yer house dere's too much shittin' of de dishes for de fewness of de vittles!"

The white-haired old man laid down his newspaper with a troubled look, and listened to the footsteps which made themselves audible in the hall. Presently the door burst open, and in there rushed his youngest born, a sweet and charming girl of twenty summers.

"Why so sorrowful, dad?" she asked merrily, seeing the old man's depression.

"Darling," he replied, "I can scarcely believe it, but your mother says it is true."

"What is true?" breathed his beautiful daughter, eyes distended.

"That you're engaged to five young men at the same time," whispered her parent.

Then the beautiful maiden broke into merry laughter, and patted her father's shoulder playfully and joyously.

"Your dear old dad! Don't worry. They're footballers, every one, and I'm to marry the survivor at the end of the season—if there is a survivor."

An American gentleman one evening at dinner happened to get a hair in his soup, and, raising it on his spoon, said to the waiter:

"Pat, is this an Irish hair (hairs)?"

"Begor it is, sir," said Pat, "but it took an American hound to catch him."

Maine's Needle Rock.

In Blue Hill Bay, Maine, there is a pinnacle rock of only six feet in diameter at its top, which projects to within seven feet of the surface of the water and rises nearly perpendicularly out of a depth of 78 feet. The existence of this rock is an evidence of the difficulty, even in well-known waters, of demonstrating that no isolated rocks are lying in wait for heedless victims.—Harper's Weekly.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

GUM.

(By Howard L. Raun.)

Gum is an elastic stimulant which is used by people who are gifted with both side and rotary jaw action. No one can watch an enthusiastic gum chewer for several minutes without a rush of blood to the head, as it is a very dizzy process and lends a look of animation to the human countenance.

Gum is made largely of rubber bands and can be had in several different flavors, ranging from the languorous of blueberry to the most abandoned of the theatre and in the street car. It is a stirring sight to see a large, blonde society leader enter the opera at the close of the first act of "Tristan," and immediately begin to converse through a fragrant package of wintery gum.

The gum habit is very distasteful to people who never use anything on their handkerchief but a monogram. This has caused a genteel uproar on the part of the Four Hundred, and has resulted in a stern edict barring from select circles anybody who chews anything stronger than the reflective candy.

Gum chewing is a favorite occupation of the small boy, who never gives up until bedtime. He then hangs his gum on the bed post or the back of a chair and returns to it the next day with unflagging zeal. When there are two small boys in a family, they engage in a duel to see which can chew the most gum in passing a given point, and the house is frescoed with mule pepsin wads from cellar to garret.

The best brands of gum have strong curative properties, and will relieve anything but falling hair or the double-aching lambo. Well-advertised brands of gum will prevent the teeth, improve the complexion, round out the hollows in the neck, remove moles from the chin, cure the whistling asthma and prevent lockjaw. No one who chews gum sixteen hours a day will ever have the lockjaw, unless he catches it in his sleep.

CHRIST DIGNIFIED POSITION OF CHILD

BIRTH, LIFE AND TEACHING DIRECTED ATTENTION TO THEIR PLACE.

EMBLEMS OF BLESSED

The Rev. Walter Gibson, Evangelist Preaches Powerful Sermon On "What Think Ye Of Christ."

"Childhood owes a boundless debt to Jesus Christ," said the Rev. J. Walter Gibson, the "Hosier Evangelist," in his sermon at the United Brethren church last night. "By His miraculous incarnation, by His birth, by His assuming the form and living the life of a child, he dignified and sanctified childhood. Through His life, His teachings, and His actions, the cradle became a temple, and the babe became the type and emblem of the blessed. 'Forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven.'"

The Rev. Gibson took as his text, the forty-second verse of the twenty-second chapter of Matthew:

"What think ye of Christ?"

"Jesus asked this question of the Pharisees just after he had put to rest the Sadducees who sought to entrap him with a question as to the nature of the resurrection. Then came the Pharisees to Him, thinking that they might confuse Him with a question. Jesus replied with an answer beyond controversy, and then put them to silence with the simple question, 'What think ye of Christ?'"

"Let us ask ourselves that question: First what do you think of his origin? Is he human, or divine, or both? There is nothing like His incarnation in all history. It was matchless in its conception; it was boundless in its consequences. Ever since the time that Christ took upon Himself the likeness of a child, children have grown in esteem, have been given a higher position in the home, and greater advantages for development and education."

"What is the substance of our Christian belief? We point to Christ Himself for an answer to a question as to His divinity. The story of His life is the greatest proof of His divinity. It needs no labored logic or theological argument for its support. By His works we shall know Him."

"What think ye of Christ as the Son of God; as the Son of Man? His character is immaculate, perfect, complete in every respect, both human and divine. Two periods of history point to Him as the starting point; the one fraught with the promise and waiting patiently for His coming; the other looking to Him for its inspiration its light, and its hope and assurance of a better life, both now and in the ages and eternity to come. He is the light-house warning mariners on life's sea from off the hidden reefs of sin and despair; the Gibraltar of strength resisting the assaults of Satan and offering a certain and impregnable defense for sinners against his wiles. No infidel has yet been able to pick a flaw in the character of Jesus Christ."

"A prominent Minneapolis man, an avowed infidel, once devoted six weeks to the study of the life of Christ in order that he might discover some fault, some misstep, which he might undermine the faith in His divinity. Before the end of that time, he relinquished his purpose."

"No man," said he, "can study the life of Jesus Christ for six weeks, carefully and thoroughly without admitting that he is sinless and divine."

"What think ye of Christ as a teacher? Compare Him with the greatest and most renowned. He stands unrivaled. Shakespeare borrows much of his thought, his inspiration, and his beauty of language from Christ. Milton's themes and the very soul of his work come from Holy Scriptures. Tennyson's poetic fire was kindled by coals from off the altar fires, and the incense of Wordsworth's verse rises in adoration of Nature, and Nature's God. All those great beacon-lights of literature, shine by a light reflected from the Divine Countenance. Take away Jesus Christ, and you have deprived art and literature of eloquence and philosophy of what has been their very mainspring."

"What think ye of Christ as a miracle worker? Remember that they are miracles only to us; they are not contrary to natural law, for God is a God of law, respecting what was instituted by His own design and will His knowledge is our ignorance, and Christ's miracles were to demonstrate His divine might and power.

"Last and most important, what do you think of Jesus Christ as a Saviour of the world, as a Saviour of your own soul? For an answer we need but go to Calvary and see there the supreme sacrifice for the sins of an erring and sinful world. Jesus Christ is equally great by the light He shed on the shadow He casts; the light is His life, and the shadow, is the shadow of the cross. Both are mighty means of salvation, but the cross is the triumphant act, the supreme sacrifice. It is not so necessary to understand the atonement as to accept it. It is enough to know that Christ suffered, died and atoned for our sins."

"The Captain of our salvation in His ascension has not withdrawn from some lofty and inaccessible height. He is ever present among us, hooding every call, uplifting the fallen, comforting the broken-hearted, and saving all who call upon His name. Witnesses to His might are not wanting. His enemies concede it; the Pharisees admit it; Pilate confesses His guiltlessness; John the Baptist, His divinity; Thomas, His victory over death; Paul His authority and power unto salvation."

DENIES TAKING TAX OFF FREE "SMOKERS"

Collector Henry Fink of Revenue Service Declares He Does Not Know Where Story Started.

Denial of the statement that the government has abandoned its policy of taxing the "free smokers" given cigar makers by their employers is made by Henry Fink, collector for the internal revenue service of the United States treasury department. He has no idea where the report started and declares that it never had any foundation.

In commenting upon the report Collector Fink makes the following statement:

"I cannot imagine how that report originated. There is no foundation for it. Since order of last fall providing that the tax shall be collected on smokers, it has been collected. Abuses have been stopped, we believe, and practically all cigars removed from the premises of cigar factories, have paid the tax the law imposed upon them. The law has not been amended and the order to enforce it has not been amended. We believe that nearly a million dollars in revenue has been saved to the government during the past year."

RAILROADS PROTEST HITCHCOCK'S CLAIM

Companies Issue Vigorous Denial That They Are Overpaid for Carrying Mails.

Vigorous denial to the Postmaster General's claim that the railroads are overpaid for handling mail will be made by the carriers of the country. In a statement made public today the railroads say they intend laying their case before the public.

The railroads' side of the Postal pay question is in the hands of the Committee on Railway Mail Pay, representing 214,275 miles of railroad in the United States, operated by 268 companies. This Committee is composed of J. Kruttschnitt, Chairman (Director of Maintenance and Operation of the Union and Southern Pacific Systems); Ralph Peters, Vice-Chairman (President of the Long Island Railroad); Charles A. Wickersham, President and General Manager, Western Railway of Alabama; W. W. Baldwin, Vice-President, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad; W. W. Atterbury, Vice-President, Pennsylvania Railroad; George T. Nicholson, Vice-President, Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway; E. J. Pearson, First Vice-President, Missouri Pacific Railway; E. G. Buckland, Vice-President, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad; C. E. Daly, Vice-President New York Central Lines; W. A. Worthington, Assistant Director of Maintenance and Operation of the Union and Southern Pacific Systems; W. F. Allen, Secretary; and H. T. Newcomb, Statistician.

In its official statement, the Committee characterizes the scope of its answer to the Postmaster General thusly:

"The Committee on Railway Mail Pay, representing railroads whose lines include ninety-two per cent of the aggregate length of all railway routes in the United States, believes that the services and facilities furnished by them to the Post Office Department are, and for a long time have been, unjustly low. The series of statements which will be made public will contain a concise exposition of the facts which will prove that this belief is warranted and, incidentally, a refutation of the estimates made by the Postmaster General, and reported to the Congress (House Document No. 105, Sixty-second Congress, first session), which led him to conclude that the basis of payment could now properly be changed so as to accomplish a present reduction of about twenty per cent. It will be shown that, although the insufficient data and the erroneous methods employed by the Postmaster General resulted in his making estimates of cost to the railroads that are far below the real cost, his own figures and calculation, when properly analyzed and supplemented, demonstrate that the mail service has not been fairly remunerative to the railroads."

Before proceeding to demonstrate their claims, the railroads say "it should be noted that railway mail service is about to be forced further below the level of just compensation, unless payments are promptly readjusted, on account of the additional volume of mail that will result from the inauguration, on January 1, 1913, of the Parcel Post."

"Congress has provided for a vast and incalculable extension of mail traffic by creating a 'Parcel Post' to be inaugurated on January 1, 1913, which by opening the mails to many articles not previously accepted at the post offices and by materially reducing the rates on mailed merchandise, is expected enormously to increase the volume of the shipments which it covers."

"The Government seems to have assumed that under existing contracts, which were made before the meaning of the 'mail' was thus extended, the railroads can be compensated until these contracts expire, to carry this great additional volume of mail traffic without any compensation whatever. If the former practice of the Post Office department is followed, no new contracts will be made until after the next quadrennial weighings in each of the four weighing sections of the country, so that the position of the Government amounts to an assertion that the Parcel Post will have to be carried without any compensation by the railroads of New England for four years and six months (these railroads are in the first weighing section but the weighing for the adjustment to be made on January 1, 1913, has begun and will be completed before the Parcel Post is inaugurated), by those of the second weighing section for three years and six months, by those of the third weighing section for two years and six months, by those of the fourth weighing section for one year and six months, and by those of the first weighing section, not located in New England, for six months."

"No presentation of the injustice of the mail pay received in former years suggests even the approximate extent of the losses which the railroads will thus incur in the next four and one-half years, unless readjustments are promptly made on account of the Parcel Post."

MILD WEATHER FOR FIRST OF DECEMBER

Average Temperatures Will Prevail For Holidays With Less Rain or Snow Than Usual.

(Copyrighted 1912 by W. T. Foster.)

Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Dec. 3 to 7, warm wave 2 to 6, cool wave 5 to 9. This disturbance will inaugurate a long period of temperate weather that will average warmer than usual and bring less rain and snow than usual. Early in October we advised that precipitation on this continent would soon become much less, that the rains would go to South America and that in other parts of the southern continent droughts would prevail.

Much less rain is now falling on the continent while it has increased in parts of South America and particularly in the islands of the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. This indicates that we have a good basis for calculating precipitation. We expect the main precipitation the next 4 months to be along the south of the equator and in the two large vicinities surrounding the Amazon in South America and the island New Guinea and Borneo in Oceania. We made during the past four months, a vast number of experiments based on weather records and believe we have largely improved our forecast system.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Dec. 7, cross Pacific valleys 9 to 11, eastern sections 12.

The Evening Chit-Chat

ABOUT NERVES.

THE lawyer for the other side, you remember I told you about him, he is that part of you that if it is given any encouragement will present the arguments for the other side when you are thinking over your grievances or other people's faults—held such an interesting argument with me the other night that I want to pass it on to you. The argument was on the subject of an invalid neighbor of mine who has no trouble with any of her organs but is a victim of sick nerves.

Whenever things do not go just right, she gets fearfully nervous and depressed and makes everybody about her miserable by her gloomy voice and face.

Now it seems to me that if she would only make an effort she could rise above the depression and keep from getting so nervous.

Said the lawyer for the other side, "No, she couldn't any more than you could help feeling a pain in your arm if you had one. Nervous depression is just as involuntary a thing as pain."

Said I, "Well anyhow she could have prevented herself from getting into such a nervous state. She certainly is to blame for that."

Said the lawyer for the other side, "Could you have helped getting that terrible pain in your back when you had to work so hard last summer? You don't think you ought to be blamed for that, do you?"

"No," said I, reluctantly, "but anyhow nervousness is not to be compared with a terrible pain like that."

"Isn't it?" said the lawyer for the other side. "That's where you're greatly mistaken. Didn't I read in something you wrote that you thought that mental pain was infinitely worse than physical pain? Well, that's what nervous depression is: the worst sort of mental suffering—a grinding, relentless ache like—well, like that rheumatism you said was the worst thing you ever had. You think it's terrible just to see anyone look so gloomy. Well, how do you suppose it seems to feel that way?"

"There is something in that," I reluctantly conceded.

"SOMETHING," retorted the lawyer for the other side, "I should say there was."

It is sometimes hard to understand and sympathize with a person when we know that there is nothing organic the matter, when it's "just a case of nerves."

We sometimes feel as if that meant that a little effort on the part of the sick one would cure her.

In reality such cases mean that the patient will have to use infinitely more effort and patience than if there were merely something wrong with some single organ.

We think of nerves as intangible things; but if you will stop to think about it you will realize that they are just about the realst things that can be, the very acme and center of reality.

So in the future when I am inclined to get out of patience with anyone who is nervous I am going to remember the arguments of the lawyer for the other side.

Will you join me?

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

The Rights of Others

THEY were a crowd of jolly girls of sixteen, seventeen and thereabouts, and from their talk seemed to be on their way home from boarding school for the Thanksgiving holiday.

They filed into the car, turned over one of the seats, and piled their bags and suitcases into the seats, thus facing each other. Then they went elsewhere in the car and seated themselves, free of all inconvenient impediments.

The car gradually filled. People came along hunting for seats. They looked at the seats filled with baggage, but having little initiative, or believing that the occupants of the seats would return, passed on. They crowded themselves and their baggage into other seats. Finally, as the train pulled out, several were standing.

All this time, the girls watched proceedings with giggles and laughter and undertone remarks.

"The way they peek about makes me think of chickens," said one.

"That was a good idea of yours, Alice," said another. "If you hadn't suggested it, we would have had all those awful suitcases and bags piled up with us, and no place to put our feet."

Alice looked pleasantly conscious, and giggled.

One girl raised a protesting voice. "I don't think we ought to keep those seats," she said, "when the car is so full."

But the others indignantly cried her down, and she subsided, though it was plain to be seen, she felt uncomfortable.

The girls seemed to think they had done something rather clever. By a shrewd stroke, as they thought, they had secured their own comfort. The discourtesy, the lack of consideration, the real dishonesty of their act, never seemed to enter their minds.

Fortunately such girls are few. But here and there one finds not only young people, but older ones, with this attitude toward life. "Get all you can for yourself, regardless of others," says their action.

But how much finer that spirit which is voiced publicly in Boston in placards in its stations, "Have due regard for the rights of others."

We have our rights, sufficient for our needs. But so have others. We should not infringe upon them, nor let them infringe upon ours. And when we meet this spirit that would rob us of what is justly ours, we should not meekly let it have its way, as did these people in the train; but we should demand that it be checked and put within bounds, whether it is expressed by a group of schoolgirls or a group of capitalists.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Health Bread—A reliable recipe for the most delicious health bread which, if eaten regularly, will shortly do away with the nightly pill habit. By adding one cupful of nut meats or raisins, children enjoy it as they would cake, and their elders likewise, without suffering any unpleasant after effects. Follow the directions exactly.

One quart best clean bran, half pint of coarse graham flour, half pint white flour, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder. Sift these into a bowl and what does not go through run in also.

Dissolve half teaspoon baking soda in one tablespoon boiling water, then stir that into half pint good molasses. Pour one pint sweet milk, one tablespoon melted butter and the prepared molasses over dry ingredients; mix thoroughly.

Put this in two pans where it has room to rise, but not to spread, and bake immediately 40 to 45 minutes. If fruit or nuts are used, flour them slightly and add them last to the

YOUR HAIR IS FLUFFY, BEAUTIFUL AND LUSTROUS IN A FEW MOMENTS

Girls! Get a 25 cent bottle of "Danderline" and try this. Also stops falling hair; destroys every particle of dandruff.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderline" hair cleanse.

Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderline and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderline dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If it surely got a 25 cent bottle of Knewlton's Danderline from any drug, gist or toilet counter, and just try it.

batter. Yeast can be used in place of baking powder and soda, if desired. In this case let it rise just like other bread.

Things Worth Knowing.

Moth Preventive—Fill wide-mouthed bottle or jar with absorbent cotton, then fill with spirits of turpentine. Place in closet or locker in which clothes are hung. Especially adapted for lodge uniform lockers, etc.

To Cover Kitchen Table With Oil Cloth—Make good flour paste by taking about one pint flour, wet with cold water, rub smooth, then pour on boiling water and boil for five minutes. Remove from fire and spread on table, thick. Put on oilcloth and stretch smooth and tight. Fasten ends well under table. Will last longer, wipe easier and look neater than the old way.

Things Worth Knowing.

Celery will keep crisp and fresh for a long time if kept wrapped in wet paper.

To mix flour and water for thickening purposes, use a fork instead of a spoon.

Water bottles that have been discolored on the inside from having hard water left standing in them, can be cleaned perfectly with potato parings when nothing else will do the work.

If one is short of cream for coffee place a whole marshmallow at the bottom of each cup before pouring the coffee over. The result will be the same at a small cost, and a most delicious flavor will be obtained.

Popcorn Bails.

Pop a large pan of corn. Pour sirup over corn, and bail.

Sirup: Two tablespoons vinegar, one tablespoon butter, two cups sugar, one-half cup water, one teaspoon vanilla.

Boil vinegar, butter, sugar and water until it threads, then add vanilla. Pour over corn, and bail white warm.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

IT MAKES a heaven-wide difference whether the soul of a child is regarded as a piece of blank paper to be written upon, or as a living power to be quickened by sympathy, to be educated by truth.

THE CHILDREN'S LUNCH BOX.

The packing of a lunch box five days in the week for thirty or forty weeks in a year may sound easy to speak about, but is powerful constant and monotonous. Children must be well nourished to do good work in school, and it is best when possible to give them a warm dinner at night.

For the working man and office woman the lunch must vary in quantity, but there are some directions which will apply to all lunch boxes.

There is no one, even an uneducated ditch digger, who is so blind to the necessities of life that he does not appreciate a well prepared lunch, though it be nothing but a sandwich. Throwing together a mass of food, mixing flavors and making a messy, unsightly appearance, would disturb the satisfaction of an ostrich.

Of course, the sandwich is inevitable, and should be so varied from day to day that the diet may not be monotonous.

Another limitation to be taken into account when making up a lunch box, is personal tastes. The one who likes a hot drink can now carry it in a thermos bottle, as they are being made cheap enough now for any one.

For those who are fond of tomatoes a most appetizing sandwich is made by placing a slice of tomato and a thin slice of cheese with a bit of salad dressing between slices of bread. Two of these, with two of meat sandwiches, a cup cake, and an apple, banana or pear will make a good lunch.

Two sandwiches of bread and butter with two of chopped ham and a small jar of apple salad, a piece of ginger bread and a bottle of hot milk or coffee is another day's luncheon.

Four sandwiches, two of brown bread spread with cottage cheese after they are buttered, three olives, a pickle, two sandwiches of white bread spread with jelly, a piece of cake or three cookies, is another worthy of a trial.

A handful of nuts, a few dates or figs, a piece of candy or two will always delight the young or old children. Small glasses of jelly or jam are always acceptable; cup custards and fruits of all kinds make a plain lunch seem very tempting. Wrapping and arranging the different articles makes such a difference in the appearance of a lunch box.

Helmi Maxwell.

Different Method of Talking.

Our little boy three years old had been told of the difference between human beings and dumb animals—that we could talk and reason because of our brains and intellect, and that dumb animals could not. Being disobedient one day, I told him that if he would not obey the ruler would talk. He replied, tearfully, "How can a ruler talk, mother? It has no intellect."

—Exchange.

Possibly the Reason.

"The trouble is that my boss has favorites. You can't deny it." "I won't deny it. But have you noticed that his favorites do all the hard work about the place?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY

Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

Everyone may not learn to set a table artistically, but there are few who cannot learn to set it much better than they do. It is called art by some and as such should be recognized by everyone.

It is not so much what is put on the table in the form of dishes, linen and service, as how it is done. Unusual, faddish, setting of the table should be avoided for the everyday or holiday meal unless it would be for such days as Halloween.

The setting of the table usually falls to the daughter of the house. If there is one, if not, the mother does it herself or directs how it should be done if there is a helper in the home. There is no place in the entire home which can show the individual artistic touch of mother or daughter as the table; and there are some, absolutely fixed rules for the placing of most of the service.

In the first place, linens should be spotless and white and as fine as possible.

your style of living will warrant, the simpler ones for everyday use and the finer ones for special occasion.

They may be all this, but if not perfectly washed, the corners of cloth folded perfectly even, the very foundation of the table setting will be a failure.

Table decorations should not be too elaborate and always in keeping with the character of the day celebrated or the desired color scheme used.

Thanksgiving day colors are usually yellow to correspond with the pumpkins and chrysanthemum, which is the usual flower of the day.

The soup plate is on a service plate, which is an eight or 10-inch plate.

The soup spoon is placed to the right of the knife, and teaspoon and the soup ladle to the right of the soup spoon. Using left hand for removing cover of twelve, you are ready to take the ladle in right hand and serve soup which may be passed to other members of the family at table.

The water glass or goblet should always be placed at end of knife blade. The bread and butter plate is on the left end of fork. The silver is always used from the outside toward the plate, either from right or left. Napkins should always be placed on left side of fork.

Twenty-four inches is the usual space allowed for each cover or person.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—About a year ago I saw a young man in a public place who seemed very anxious to meet me. I was sitting on a bench with a girl friend. He came and sat down beside me and started talking to me. I sat there a minute, then got up and left him.

The other day I saw him at the State Fair and he spoke to me and I answered him. I was with another girl and a boy friend. They left us together. He acted very nicely and told me his name and asked me mine, so I told him my name and address.

(1) Did I do right in speaking to him? (2) Was it right for me to tell him my name? (3) If I met him in the future, will it be right for me to talk to him?

BLONDE.

(1) It was not very discreet, my dear. (2) I cannot say that it would be right as a rule, to do this. (3) You might say "How do you do," but if he wishes to talk further with you, tell him frankly that he must find a mutual acquaintance to introduce him to you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—For the last two years a fellow has been trying to make me fall in love with him. I don't care for him and would like to give him a good hint to leave me alone. I flattered him every time he made a date, but it doesn't seem to cure him. Please advise me.

ANXIOUS.

Simply refuse him every time. He can't force you to go with him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a young man of 22. A year ago, at night school, I met a young lady of 18. For three months we ate from the same table but staid at separate houses. She was very friendly to me at first, but the last months of school she became a little distant.

I said good-bye to her with a pang. I have written two letters since and have received no reply. Please advise me what to do, as I would like very much to know how she is. I am not in love with her, yet she is (to me) one of the nicest girls I ever met.

(1) Was it right of me to take two girls to their home rather than be bluffed out? (Two of this girl's companions.)

(2) If I chance to go to her town, would it be unmanly to go and see her?

(3) When I ask a girl to go out walking and have enjoyed her company very much, should I tell her so and thank her for her company? Or should she do that?

(4) What does it mean when the stamp on a card is turned at right angles? (Where the stamp always is.)

LUCK.

I think you care for her more than she does for you.

(1) It was all right if it did not make you neglect the girl you were escorting.

(2) It would be quite proper for you to call on her, as a school acquaintance.

(3) By all means, tell the girl if you enjoy her company and thank her for the pleasure she has given you. She will undoubtedly reply that she has found the time pass pleasantly, also.

(4) It means that somebody didn't put it on straight. Stamp flirtation is so silly that I never encourage it by giving information on that subject.

MUSHROOMS.

Twelve Chicagoans, one of whom is dead, were poisoned by eating goodscoals recently. Toadstools are easily mistaken for mushrooms, and, since mushrooms have no real value as food, or at least are entirely unnecessary in a rational dietary, it is unwise to risk life to gratify a craving for excessive variety. Much of the mushrooms sold are raised in cellars and other unsanitary places, and are not to be recommended.

HIS RISE TO POWER

By HENRY RUSSELL MILLER.
Author of "The Man Higher Up"
Copyright, 1911, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

But not long for him had been the grime and roar, and muscle racking of the mills. Money could be had more easily. Plumville was booming. There were streets to be graded and paved, public buildings to be constructed. Jim went into politics and because he was a good "vote getter" and had a certain rough talent for the game acquired power. He opened a saloon and acquired more power. He became a contractor and secured many contracts. One day the city awoke to the fact that Jim Sheehan owned its government. The citizens cried out in protest—and, with the habit of American cities, little and big, submitted. He became, by virtue of his alliance with Murchell, state senator from Benton county and leader—we cling to the euphemism—of the county organization.

"He's all right," he repeated and chuckled.

"Who's all right?"

"Why, Johnny Dunmeade, of course! Didn't tell you how I happened to be going to see him 'stead of the other way round. It's a horse-on me, all right." He threw back his head, and the chuckle became a loud guffaw. "Sent word for him to come to my office last Tuesday at 2 o'clock sharp. Guess he knew what for. He came, all right. I thought it'd do him good to cool his heels awhile—keep him from getting too chesty. Guess he waited about half an hour and then got up. 'Present my compliments to Senator Sheehan,' he says to the boy, 'and tell him to go to the devil and learn how to keep his appointments,' and left. 'Long about 3 o'clock I strolled out and gets his message.' Sheehan paused long enough to slap his thigh resoundingly. 'He's all right. Ain't any one told me to go to the devil for some time. He'll be worth 500 extra majority—to the whole ticket.'

"If he'll take the nomination."

"Take it? Of course he'll take it. Ain't there $1,500 a year in it for him? And maybe when his term's ended he might go to the legislature as representative."

"Or state senator?"

Sheehan grinned. "Say, do I look like I was on my way to the bone-yard?"

He became serious. "What's the matter with the people, anyhow? Rainin' Cain all over the state—just because," he added complacently, "one trust company went up and the cashier shut itself. Ain't business good? Ain't the organization given them good government?" he demanded.

"It has," Senator Murchell spoke with conviction.

"What do they want, then?"

"I don't know. They don't know. And as long as they don't know," Murchell said dryly, "you and I, Jim, needn't be afraid."

They had reached and turned the corner of the street that bounds the courthouse square on the north. They stopped at a frame, two room shack by the door of which hung a battered tin sign. "John Dunmeade, Attorney at Law," Sheehan led the way inside. Through the door of the inner room came the muffled drone of voices. The two men seated themselves in the anteroom and waited. Ten minutes passed. Then the door opened and John Dunmeade emerged, ushering out a big, bearded farmer. When the client had left the young lawyer turned to his callers and shook hands, warmly, with Murchell and hastily with Sheehan.

"Will you step inside, gentlemen?" They took seats around the old, time-stained mahogany table.

"Well?" Dunmeade's look addressed the remark to Senator Murchell.

The senator smiled slightly. "I'm here only as an honorary vice president. Ask Sheehan. He likes to talk."

"Sure," Sheehan grinned. "I ain't one of them that believes the feller that don't talk is deep and wise. He generally isn't talkin' because he can't think of nothin' to say." He paused and continued, "Well, Mr. District Attorney—

"Isn't that a little premature?" John interrupted.

For answer the Honorable Jim drew forth from another pocket a folded newspaper, which he spread out on his knees. Solemnly, he began to read: "We should not dignify the present rather unsettled political conditions with the name crisis. But it is unquestionably a time when our party must inspect its path carefully. At such a time it behooves it to choose as candidates only men whose fearlessness and honesty are not open to question. Benton county has this fall to fill the important office of district attorney. Of all those mentioned for this post we know of none who so well fills the bill as John Dunmeade, the popular and brilliant young lawyer of New Chelsea. His name—Sheehan's voice rose to a triumphant climax—"his name has brought forth enthusiasm wherever mentioned. The entire county wants him. It will have him." He looked up. "What do you think of that, eh?"

"Which of you," John asked, "inspired that editorial?"

"I did," answered Sheehan. "I didn't write it though," he confessed.

"Don't you think," John demanded, a little sharply, "you might have asked my consent before using my name as a candidate? Do I understand you've come here to—to give me your consent to run?"

"We came to say we'd support you."

"Then let me state the case to you as it is. The state is pretty much worked up over that trust company affair back east. I'm not sure it oughtn't to be worked up, either. The farmers in this county and a good many people in Plumville aren't very friendly to you personally at best. 'In short,' he laughed, "you need some new timber to patch up the old ship of state. And you think I'll do."

Sheehan turned to Senator Murchell. "Senator, let's me and you go right out and resign and let Johnny here run things. Don't you want the job?" he demanded of John.

"I don't know yet. I'm thinking it over. But if I take it it will be on condition—"

"On condition?"

"That there are no conditions. I'd want to run my campaign and the office according to my own notions. I'd run it straight."

"Sure!" agreed Sheehan.

"I really mean it, you know," John insisted. "I might even have to get after you, Sheehan."

This to Sheehan was humorous matter. "That's all right," he agreed again, grinning. "If you can catch me. You think it over, Johnny, and let me know tomorrow."

He rose. "Well, I guess I must be going. Are you comin' along, senator?"

"Not just now, Sheehan," Senator Murchell answered.

"I'll be sayin' good day, then," Sheehan shook hands with Senator Murchell and John and left.

CHAPTER II.

The Theorist.

JOHN went to the window, where he watched the politician, until the swaggering figure disappeared around the corner. Murchell, with a faint twinge at his heart, saw the distant plainly written on the young man's face. The twinge was because the time had come to grind his young friend through the mills of the organization. The senator, who set a low value upon gratuitous services, proposed to make the grinding process worth while to the man who was to be ground. He was already forming vague plans of setting him on the road to high political station. Perhaps John might even prove to be an Elshin, some day to assume a fallen mantle.

To the portrait of the state leader already painted we may add that William Murchell was a bachelor, a matter for which he is not to be censured too severely, since he once made an earnest effort to repair the condition. His had been a very simple romance. He had loved, had laid himself and his aspirations at the lady's feet and had been rejected. A short time afterward he stood with his best friend as the latter took the same lady to holy wedlock. It is probable that he had his period of suffering; but, as became a man of ambition, he quickly put an end to it and gave himself to the climb to power. In time his romance was almost forgotten.

Almost, for in later years sometimes in a mellow hour he would construct for himself a scene in which a gentle faced woman with gray-green eyes sat across the hearth and around them an indefinite number of the second generation. In the scene was always a pleasantly laughing young man who peered out on the world through eyes like his mother's. This often occurred after Senator Murchell had met or heard something of John Dunmeade, a young man in whom he thought he saw a masculine replica of the woman of his romance. The senator's memory must have been good, for she had been dead many years. He was seeing her that June afternoon.

John returned to his chair. Murchell looked around at the dingy office. Over the desk hung a calendar and another faded, old fashioned print of Daniel Webster. Save for this adornment the walls were given over to calf and sheep bound books—rows and rows set upon plain pine shelves. The old mahogany furniture, doubtless splendid in its day, had been battered and scratched by many careless hands and feet.

"You keep the old office just the same, I see. I remember when your grandfather built and furnished it."

"Yes, I don't like to disturb things, though Aunt Roberta thinks it's a fearful mess. Three generations of Dunmeades have used this office just as it is."

"I used to come here to borrow books from your grandfather and talk politics. He was a mighty smart man. He would have been governor during the war if he hadn't died. He gave me my start."

"Yes," John said idly. "Senator"—he leaned forward abruptly—"what do you think of Sheehan? Why don't you, with all your power, put men like Sheehan out of politics?"

"Young man," Murchell answered dryly. "If I were strong enough to put all the rascals out of politics I'd make the Almighty jealous. Are you going to take the nomination?"

"I hate to be under obligations to Sheehan."

"You won't be under obligations—to Sheehan."

"I don't want to be under obligations," John hesitated a moment—"to you. Something might come up that would make me seem ungrateful."

"I'll risk it."

"But I'm not sure I'm the kind of man you want."

"I'll risk it," Murchell repeated.

"But I don't think you understand," John persisted. "I've been—bothered a little lately about some things. That trust company affair, for instance—it doesn't look right. And then Sheehan—I can't quite stomach his power. I don't like to seem to criticize, senator, but it looks to me as though the system that allowed that trust company affair must be wrong somewhere."

"Tot, tut, young man!" the senator answered, a trifle testily. "Don't go flying off at a tangent with harebrained theories about perfect systems."

John shook his head in troubled fashion. "I've got to figure that out to my own way, senator."

Murchell looked out of the window into the square thoughtfully. It was a warm, listless day. There was nothing in the peaceful, indolent scene to tell him that the serene waters upon which he had sailed to power were to become a seething, passion lashed, fury whose subsidence he would never see. He knew, only that the people, even—and example of the ingratitude of republic—the people of Benton county, were stirring restlessly, asking questions and criticizing answers. But that would pass, as such ebullitions had always passed!

He pointed to the sleepy square. "You won't want to sit here looking out at that all your life, if you're the man I take you for. You'll want to go out and make your place—a big place—in the life of men. If you do you can't stop to hit every ugly head that pops up in your path. And you've got to make use of the materials you find. Leave the things that don't look right alone. They'll work themselves out in the end. They always have. And be impersonal. Make use of enemies and friends alike."

Counsel to Laertes from an expert in life!

"Even your friendship?" John interrupted quickly, smiling.

"You'd be a fool if you didn't," Polonius replied consistently.

"I'm afraid," John sighed—"I'm afraid I'm that kind of fool. I suppose," he went on, "I'm going to take the nomination. I do want to make a place for myself in the big life of men. But I want to earn it, not seize it because I am strong enough or have it given to me by some other who is strong." He hesitated, then continued: "It sounds absurd, I know, but something seems calling, compelling me into this. And I'm—I'm afraid. I have the feeling that I am facing something to which I perhaps may not be equal. Senator Murchell, I ask you to tell me truly, is there any reason why a man who wants to come through clean should not go into politics?"

"Absolutely none," the senator answered promptly. And he added sincerely, with a pertinence the scope of which he did not comprehend, "If there were more clean men in politics there would be less room for the rascals."

So William Murchell, as he thought, bound his young friend, John Dunmeade, to the wheels of his organization.

News travels swiftly and by mysterious avenues, in New Chelsea. That evening at supper Judge Dunmeade congratulated his son.

"I am glad," he said ponderously, "that you have entered the service of your party."

Miss Roberta, the judge's sister, sniffed disdainfully. "Does that mean pulling chestnuts out of the coals for Pussy Murchell? You better keep out of politics, John. There'll be trouble. I feel it in my bones."

"Roberta," chided the judge, "it doesn't lie in a Dunmeade's mouth to speak disparagingly of one who has placed our family under such obligations as has William Murchell."

"Meaning your judgeship, I suppose."

The judge stiffened visibly. "I trust my own character and ability had something to do with that."

"Are you depending on them to make you a justice?" It was an open secret in the Dunmeade family that the judge aspired to end his days on the supreme bench of the state.

Game Cock Tamed the Hawk.

Paul E. Gerard went to his farm one recent Sunday afternoon, and while walking over his place he saw a chicken hawk fly to the ground and catch a chicken. One of Mr. Gerard's fine game roosters saw its companion in trouble, and ran to its assistance, fighting the hawk, which later let go the chicken and saved its life.—Bowling Green Messenger.

PRESIDENT VAIL BACK OF BIG PLAN

Theodore N. Vail.

When on January 1 a fund of $10,000,000 is set aside by the associated interests controlling the Bell Telephone system, the Western Union telegraph company and the Western Electric company, as permanent pension for their 175,000 employees, an old dream of President Theodore N. Vail of the Bell company, will have been realized. Vail is the one who made public a few days ago the details of a plan whereby old age pensions are to be paid to employees who have served long and faithfully. This is a plan which Vail has favored for some time, but which the concerns involved have not seen fit to adopt until very recently.

Kept Track of Food Consumed.

It is, of course, not easy to estimate the amount of food consumed by each of us in a year, but one dietetic expert who kept a record of his meals during twelve months declares that he ate 180 loaves of bread, 180 pounds of meat, drank 61 gallons of milk, and ate no fewer than 300 eggs, in addition to other things.—London Tit-Bits.

SHE LOST HER HAIR.

But she found it again. That is the good part of the story. It cost her a lot of pride to lose it, and just a dollar to find it. You see, the dollar is the price of a bottle of Hall's Hair Renewer. No coloring of the hair. First of all, she talked it over with her doctor. This gave her confidence to go ahead. Advertisement.

Some Bad Examples.

We have all heard of the butcher who was a vegetarian, of the barber who was a shoemaker, of the shoemaker who let his children go barefoot, but here is a new one. A delegate to the late convention of the laundress at Lawrence wore a celluloid collar.—Lawrence Gazette.
